Proper Caravan Procedure

This is for our new members and a reminder for members that have been in the club for a while.

Leader: The leaders job is to make sure the caravan stays together. This usually means driving the speed limit and some times slowing to less than the speed limit to allow members to keep up. When pulling out onto busy roads you will often have to drive slow until everyone gets out. Those not in the caravan will most likely choose to pass the group.

Caravan Members: It is your job to try a keep up to maintain the caravan. If you are following someone who chooses to drive slower it is not bad form to pass when it is safe. That member should not be offended, as you have taken the pressure off them to drive faster than they want to.

President's Page

Members,

I write this fresh off our return from Mackinaw City for the annual Corvette Crossroads. Unfortunately this means Summer is winding down. We have had a very active summer and had a really strong turnout for all of our events, and I can't thank you all enough for your contributions and attendance. We have even collected recognition for the most members in attendance at Corvette Crossroads and were very close to winning at the Gilmore show.

Just like on TV, "But wait, there is more". Yes, as the leaves turn, the weather chills, football kicks off, and kids return to school, we still have a full Fall calendar of events both for our club and in our Michigan Region. There is still racing, shows, and rallies on the schedule and I hope we finish the year strong. I know I will continue to make some of the Regional events and I hope to see some of you there as well. Just remember when attending events, not all that occurs is controllable by the organizers. We have lived with COVID and in Michigan weather can always be a tossup, sometimes we have to roll with the punches and remember we came for fun and to make the best of it with the people around us.

One more thing this month. We will be beginning the nominations for officers next year. So, now is the time to consider who you would like to have on the board. Also, if someone nominates you, please consider accepting the nomination. We always need people willing to contribute some time to help the club run smoothly and execute events.

Chevy's C8 Corvette E-Ray Hybrid Could Be Even More Powerful Than We Thought

The eagerly anticipated—but still unconfirmed—hybrid 'Vette would reportedly bring 650 horses and all-wheel-drive.

By Bryan Hood

Chevrolet

Corvette purists can breathe a sigh of relief. It appears that Chevy won't be sacrificing power when it comes to the marque's first electrified 'Vette.

The shift to a mid-engine layout isn't the only radical change the iconic sports car will undergo this generation, according to a report from Muscle Cars and Trucks. The Detroit giant is allegedly hard at work on a plug-in hybrid version of the C8 'Vette called the E-Ray, which sounds like it will bring enough grunt to sway even the most stubborn Corvette loyalists.

Previous reports have put the electrified sports car's power at around 600 hp, but the publication claims its hybrid powertrain will actually generate 650 hp. The setup will pair the same 6.2-liter LT2 V-8 engine that's in the C8 Stingray with a "e-booster" electric motor located on the front axle. The internal-combustion mill produces 490 hp, suggesting that electric motor will be responsible for an additional 160 hp or so. Thanks to the “e-booster,” the E-Ray won’t produce any emissions until it tops 35 mph. The motor could also improve its already impressive 2.8-seconds zero to 60 mph time, too.

2022 Chevrolet C8 Corvette Stingray Chevrolet

The electric motor won’t be the E-Ray’s only first-time Corvette feature. As has previously been reported, the hybrid is also expected to feature all-wheel-drive for the first time in the nameplate’s history. A fixture on more and more EVs—including the Tesla Model S Plaid and Rimac Nevera—the ability to send power to both axles should help improve performance even further.

It should be noted that while rumors of the E-Ray have been circulating since shortly after the debut of the mid-engine C8, Chevy and parent company General Motors have yet to confirm its existence or even acknowledge the speculation. A representative for GM did not immediately respond to a request for comment from Robb Report.

We should have an answer sooner than later, though. Muscle Cars and Trucks report the E-Ray could be here as soon as 2023. If you can’t wait that long, another high-performance C8 variant, the ZO6, is scheduled to debut this fall. That ‘Vette, which has already been confirmed and teased by Chevy, will be equipped with a 5.5-liter DOHC flat-plane crank V-8 engine that can produce up to 617 horses. Either way, it’s a good time to be a Corvette fan.
